LiveHealth raises seed funding worth $1.1M

06 March 2018 | News

The funding will be used by the startup to expand its platform across India, explore international markets and to strengthen the product and technology.

Pune-based LiveHealth has recently received $1.1 million seed funding from Nexus Venture Partners. The funding will be used by the startup to expand its platform across India, explore international markets and to strengthen the product and technology.

LiveHealth digitises records from diagnostic laboratories through its SaaS platform and makes them available on the cloud to patients and doctors. It works with over 650 diagnostic centres across India and Africa to automate their operations, to manage patients, financial transactions, automation between medical instruments, and inventory.

The platform has already digitised more than 72 million records. LiveHealth was founded by Abhimanyu Bhosale and Mukund Malani.