The funds will help the company to launch more IOT-based products

JITO Angel Network (JAN), a community-based Angel network in India, has announced an investment for an undisclosed amount in Kochi-based health tech company Evelabs Technologies (Evelabs) along with a cohort of individual investors. The funds will help the company to launch more IoT-based products and help to market and execute the Drip Orders received from various hospitals and clinics.

The investment will be JAN's ninth investment in the healthcare technology space. JAN earlier invested in health tech companies such as Comofi Medtech, AADAR, Remedico, Greencure.co, Tabit, S3V Vascular Technologies, Epigeneres, and Aten Porus.
