To solve some of healthcare's most critical challenges

CitiusTech, a leading provider of healthcare technology, services & solutions, has acquired US-based Health Data Movers, a Best in KLAS healthcare technology services firm, with deep expertise in Epic Systems, Workday, ServiceNow and other core healthcare platforms.

As healthcare providers work to improve quality of care and deliver more connected patient and clinician experiences, they face the challenges of unifying complex technology ecosystems while accelerating innovation. The rapid rise of Agentic AI, Cloud, and AI Scribes has only heightened the need for seamless integration into the core systems clinicians and staff use every day.

Epic, as the digital backbone of many healthcare providers, has been central to this transformation, driving digital adoption, enabling interoperability, and opening new pathways to embed advanced analytics and AI directly into clinical workflows.

The combination of CitiusTech's AI, data, and automation solutions and Health Data Movers' deep integration expertise, creates a unique ability to embed intelligence and automation directly into core operational platforms such as EMR, ITSM and ERP. By bringing advanced digital capabilities directly into the daily workflows that health systems trust, this approach minimizes change management risks, and delivers scalable, end-to-end solutions that enable Providers to achieve greater efficiency, quality, and impact in patient care.

“This is a pivotal moment and huge opportunity for CitiusTech and Health Data Movers, as we meet the demands of a rapidly transforming healthcare landscape. By combining forces, we are redefining the path to seamless integration, and infusing AI and intelligent automation into clinical operations. Together, we empower our customers to unlock transformative efficiencies, deliver connected patient care, and accelerate innovation, all within the systems they trust. This partnership strengthens CitiusTech’s position as a strategic partner across the healthcare ecosystem,” said Rajan Kohli, CEO, CitiusTech.

By bringing Health Data Movers’ Epic implementation and integration expertise into CitiusTech’s portfolio, this partnership has the ability to operate at the very core of the Epic ecosystem, solving some of healthcare’s most critical challenges.
