To build capacity-building programmes designed to upskill and reskill medical professionals

Max Healthcare, one of the largest private sector healthcare services companies in India, and the BAPIO Training Academy (BTA), United Kingdom, have announced the signing of a strategic training agreement to advance medical education and capacity building in India, with a focus on radiology.

The partnership will focus on developing and implementing comprehensive capacity-building programmes designed to upskill and reskill medical professionals, including training students for the Fellowship of the Royal College of Radiology examination.

The joint initiatives will leverage the expertise of both Max Healthcare and BTA to provide innovative training, facilitate knowledge transfer, and enhance diagnostic capabilities, ultimately leading to improved patient outcomes.

Speaking on the partnership, Dr Sandeep Budhiraja, Group Medical Director, Max Healthcare, said, "This collaboration is a testament to our continuous pursuit of clinical excellence and our commitment to nurturing the next generation of healthcare leaders. The focused approach on radiology will undoubtedly strengthen our diagnostic capabilities and contribute significantly to the broader medical community in India."

Commenting on the partnership, Dr Parag Singhal, CEO of BAPIO Training Academy, added, "Our collaboration with Max Healthcare marks a significant milestone in our mission to deliver high-quality, impactful medical training. By combining our robust training methodologies with Max Healthcare's extensive clinical infrastructure and expertise, we are poised to create unparalleled opportunities for healthcare professionals, especially in critical areas like radiology, which is crucial for modern healthcare delivery."
